Cenotaph Mitotic

Heard so many hollow voices
Eighty puppets yelling "hello, sailor"
Crying out so plaintive
Spilling Scrabble seed like Onan...

I don't like to sing that much these days.

it's a lot of learning.

I have these fitful dreams of Jaundice in the tulips, windmills
Giving every passing knight a Good time like it's 1989.

you ought to look at things a different way.

How'd they know my water's bitter?
Itch of dirt beneath these harlot fingernails, beneath these Florid shrouds my nightmare eyes see all this Nordstrom product placement.

you either rise or fall.

Life's obscured by darkened cloth and Avalon's triquetra mice draw closer Terror eaters, death coronae, Arc-eared rats in scarlet robes---

just take them off?

Every ad's another fusillade and
All this shrapnel's going somewhere fast, so Hold my hair back for me, please.

it's going viral.

Is it 1998? There's never been a point to All those days and months,
All that bullshit with the clocks.

it's no use.

Here I wave my hand
and here I count your words
And still, this psychologic intervention isn't quite my cup of tea.
There's nothing past my glassy eyes.

i don't envy the attempt.

Here I am, the nutshell queen of This translucent slice of cartoon bread, my Gentle witchlike girlrot scent, that Sickly rush of dopamine, this New heroic failure.

i'm better than you are.

I guess I've given it away today.

you lack the depth to challenge gamers.

How much do I owe you, shrink?

just fish without the bait next time.
